

TEEN BEDROOM: RHONDA PETERSON

I believe design is never finished. It is a constant progression and evolution that should reflect who we are and how we live at every stage in our lives. Our homes should tell our stories in a meaningful way without having to utter a word.

My favorite part about designing the teen bedroom is that I was able to reflect upon my daughter and her friends, and how they live in their bedrooms. They are way more sophisticated than I was at their age; being more thoughtful when it comes to selecting color, textures, finishes, and those special little details. It was fun and inspiring to see the space come together through their eyes.

- (1) I love the curved sleek silhouette of the bed. It is understated chic for a teen girls room.
- (2) The white drawers of the dresser framed in cerused oak with lucite hardware gives this traditional piece a modern flair.
- (3) I love the gray finish and the slim tapered legs with brass detail of the desk. It's just enough space to double as a desk and vanity.
- (4) The fur accent chair used as a desk/vanity chair adds texture and fun to a teens room.
- (5) The pouf with brass feet is the perfect size to move wherever it is needed for extra seating, to be used as a place to stack magazines/books, or even to put up her feet.
- (6) I've always loved the idea of a floor lamp in place of a bedside table; and this brass lamp with long curved neck will be great for reading in bed.
- (7) The floor mirror is essential in any teens room. I love the simplicity of this one.
- (8) I love that the art is neutral in color, but is able to hold interest and hold space in the room because of it's size, texture, and shimmer.
- (9) The pendant lends that bit of edge the room needed in order to not float away. Love the black orb and brass
- (10) The rug has the perfect balance of colors to pull the elements of the room together.
- (11) I love the simplicity of the white table lamp.
- (12) The wallpaper to be used on the ceiling is just beautiful. I love the movement and the soft blue and white color mixture.
